Councilman accuses colleagues of railroading ordinance

Upland building ban controversy

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Upland City Council passed an immediate moratorium on the issuance of various building permits Monday by a 4-1 vote without a public hearing or even reading the ordinance in total.

The consideration of a moratorium was not even on the agenda and copies of the ordinance were available only to members of the council.

Tempers flared as Councilman Hal Bailin, the lone opponent, accused others on the council of railroading through the legislation without consideration of the public.

"If you want a moratorium, at least have the guts to ask the community if they want it," yelled Bailin.

"This measure was concocted by two council members at breakfast and presented to the city attorney this morning."

Upon questioning by Bailin, City Attorney Donald Maroney admitted that he was "asked this morning to draw up the ordinance."

In the middle of the heated discussion, council members called a recess during which changes in two sections of the ordinance were made.

Over the protest of Bailin that he hadn't even read the four-page document and didn't know what it contained, the other council members voted to read and adopt the ordinance as a urgency measure, by title and number only.

The ordinance calls for a 120-day moratorium which is the legal limit, according to the city attorney.

It suspends the issuance of various building permits including tentative tract maps, multiple family planning and the modification of existing uses of lands.

While it does not specifically cover most commercial and industrial building, City Engineer Fred Blanchard said this type of development can be controlled "through existing ordinances which monitor the use of water and sewage facilities under special permits."

The ordinance does allow for exceptions in the cases of "specific hardships."

The introduction of the moratorium followed a presentation by San Bernardino County Planning Director Ken Topping concerning the rapid growth in the West End of San Bernardino County.

Topping said he was inviting the council to attend a March 3 meeting to discuss the rapid growth in the area and its effect on the water, sanitation, schools, road and other facilities.

"We know that growth is vital to the area and have no desire to stop it," Topping said. "We are just attempting to get a clearer picture of the total situation at this point."

Both Topping and Supervisor Joseph Kamansky asked the Upland Council to put off any action for 30 days when additional reports and information would be available.

In his comments after Topping's presentation and before the council took its moratorium action, Kamansky said "Don't put the community to a building disadvantage." He blamed the state for the delay in solving sewage problems, but said that state and federal representatives have said that they are "now cutting through some of the red tape."

Bob Mills spoke on behalf of the Upland Chamber of Commerce and said its board of directors "recommends that the city take no action on the moratorium at this time."

Mills added, "We feel the private sector needs to be heard." Councilman William Bottin said "Since we don't really know how bad things are, we should have an emergency program to study what's going on. It's up to us to make the decision."

In making the motion to adopt the moratorium ordinance, Bottin said. "As of tonight all filings should not be accepted."

Since no public hearings were scheduled on the council agenga and most items appeared to be routine, the audience was smaller than normal.

However, those businessmen and citizens in the audience said after the meeting that they were "stunned," or "caught by surprise."

Parents leap to safety

Home fire kills 5 children

HOLBROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Five children ranging in age from 4 to 18 died early today in a fire that destroyed their family's wooden, colonial-style home here.

The parents jumped to safety and then tried to re-enter the house, but were unable to do so.

One witness said the father, Michael Kenny, stood outside the house in the snow screaming, "My God, we've got to get my children out!"

Kenny, 47, and his wife Barbara, 38, watched in horror as scores of firemen fought in vain to reach the children, who were burned beyond recognition. Some 130 volunteer fireman fought the blaze.

The Kennys were taken to Brookhaven Memorial Hospital in Patchogue, where a spokesman said they were suffering from smoke inhalation, bruises and shock. Mrs. Kenny also had a broken leg, he said.

Officials identified the dead children as Gary, 18; Karen, 16; Michael Jr., 13; Ian, 7, and Anthony, 4.

Three of the children were found in the living room on the first floor. Two others were found beside a window on the second floor.

Officials said Mrs. Kenny discovered the fire and alerted her husband. Holbrook Fire Chief Robert Rogers said the parents jumped to safety from the second story, and other officials said the parents tried to re-enter the house but were blocked by flames.

A neighbor, Kathleen Alba, said Kenny woke her up at 4:30 a.m. banging on her door and screaming, "My kids are in there! My kids are in there!"

She said Kenny, clad in pajamas, and his wife, in a nightgown, stood in her home helpless, watching the fire burn.

"It was like a nightmare," Mrs. Alba said. "I couldn't stand it. They kept screaming, 'My children are in there!'"

Rogers, the fire chief, said he received a call at 4:34 a.m.

"I live two minutes away," he said. "I was on the scene immediately. Flames were coming out of every window. It just lit up the sky. The children were inside and entry was impossible."

Police said they received a call from Mrs. Kenny before 4:30 a.m., but were unable to understand her because she was screaming.

Another neighbor, Jane Waters, said she was awakened by Kenny's screams. She said her husband, Donald, raced outside with a six-foot ladder and tried to climb to the second-story window where two of the children were found. The ladder was too short, she said.

Two firemen suffered injuries and were hospitalized, a fire department spokesman said. The cause of the blaze was not immediately established.

ROUNDUP IN UPLAND

An Upland police officer marches two of 17 suspected illegal aliens found hiding in an Upland home at 184 S. Third Ave. this morning. The suspects were still wearing their cannery work clothes when arrested. All are reported to have been working at the Old Ranchers Cannery directly in back of the home surrounded by high cyclone fencing.

Governor's bid by Schabarum?

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Los Angeles County Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum said today he would like to be governor of the state of California, but he has not yet firmly decided to run.

He said his main consideration is how much support he would get from the Republican Party.

"I am available, more than available," said Schabarum, "but first, I have to test the air."

He said his first "testings" have shown the "normal enthusiasm" which the party gives to most qualified candidates.

"But," continued Schabarum, "we'll see what happens when push comes to shove."

Schabarum said he was being particularly cautious because the gubernatorial election in 1978 comes at the same time as his reelection bid for his third, four-year term to the Board of Supervisors.

Before he makes any definite decision, Schabarum said, he wants to "talk with former Governor Reagan and to State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, one of two men who already have announced their gubernatorial candidacy."

The other is San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson.

"Also, I want to talk with all other Republican Party members who hold some sway.

"I repeat," Schabarum said, "I am interested, and I say so to any and all who are concerned about my running for governor."

Schabarum, 49, not only has been a county supervisor but also a member of the Assembly prior to his appointment to the county post by then Gov. Ronald Reagan to fill the unexpired term of the late Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli in 1972.

Schabarum, in a contemplative mood, talked in a serious vein with reporters. He repeated that he would like to run for governor, but would not commit himself right now.

Before he could make a definite commitment, he said, he would have to be "reasonably sure the party bigwigs" would back him against Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., as well as Younger and Wilson, and possibly other, yet unknown candidates.

HEW to partially lift flu shot moratorium

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano Jr. has decided to partially lift the nationwide moratorium on flu vaccinations, sources in his department said today.

The sources said Califano plans a flu vaccine program that will follow "at least in some respects" the recommendations of a panel of experts he summoned to Washington on Monday.

The details of his program were not immediately available.

A panel of medical and scientific experts urged Califano on Monday to revive limited and voluntary inoculation programs in the wake of an outbreak of 59 A-Victoria flu cases in a Miami nursing home.

The panel urged the government to encourage the elderly and chronically ill to get shots and to make them available without recommendation to anyone else who wants them.

The panel also advised lifting a moratorium on the vaccine for Hong Kong-B flu, a less severe strain that primarily infects children and young adults. If the moratorium were lifted, this vaccine would be available from private doctors, as before.

The nation has 27 million doses of A-Victoria vaccine on hand mixed with swine flu vaccine.

The government suspended all flu inoculation programs on Dec. 16 after the swine flu vaccine was linked to an increased threat of Guillain-Barre syndrome, a rare but sometimes deadly paralysis.

But the advisory panel decided that the potential risk of Guillain-Barre was less than the danger from an outbreak of A-Victoria, which authorities say could claim 12,600 lives if it spread to only 5 per cent of the population. A-Victoria was blamed for 11,000 deaths in an outbreak in this country last year.

A-Victoria was blamed for 57 illnesses and four "flu-related" deaths among the Florida nursing home's 176 patients in the past two weeks. Fifteen staff members also fell ill.

The panel made no recommendation on whether to lift the moratorium on inoculations with the pure strains of swine flu vaccine.

Both the A-Victoria and swine strains are classified as the most serious forms of flu, but A-Victoria is the more common.

Riverside jail melee quelled

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Officials say a group of Mexican-American prisoners, angered over allegedly being served cold food in the county jail, have been locked in their day cells after they went on a rampage, breaking windows and setting fire to trash.

Forty-one inmates were barred from retiring to their sleeping quarters Monday night after the day-long disturbances. The inmates complained that their section of the jail was served cold food and that guards were slow to respond to them. Eight prisoners refused to come out of their day cells for court appearances.

The inmates would remain locked in their day cells until the eight prisoners with court dates come out.

Upland roundup nets nearly 100 illegal alien suspects

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

The U.S. Border Patrol and Upland police today rounded up nearly 100 illegal aliens near two major Upland canning and packing plants, and discovered what could be a "harboring house."

Four border patrolmen and more than 10 Upland police officers, directed by Patrol Agent Ronald Barbeau, began the roundup of suspected illegal aliens from Mexico about 5 a.m. when they stopped two San Gabriel Valley labor camp buses enroute to La Verne Co-op Citrus Association and the Old Ranchers Canning Co., Inc. and began checking the workers on board.

Twenty-nine suspected illegal aliens were removed from the buses when they failed to show the proper identification. They were placed into vans. The first group was taken to the Upland police station while other officers began patroling in the area of the two packing companies, stopping vehicles suspected of containing other illegal aliens. Another 20 suspects were apprehended.

About the same time, officers raided an apartment on Valdez Street in Upland where 20 more were apprehended.

Finally about 8 a.m., officers were directed to a vacant home at 184 Third Ave. This was surrounded by a high cyclone fence topped by barbed wire and located directly behind the Old Ranchers Canning Co. storage yard. Officers knocked on the door of the wood frame home but got no answer. The officers finally went through the storage yard and to the back door.

When officers entered, they found several suspected illegal aliens sitting on the floor and heard movement throughout the home. Officers searched the other rooms and found more aliens dressed in white clothes used for work in the cannery. A crawl hole in the attic was pushed open and even more aliens were found hiding.

Before the search of the home ended, 17 more aliens were in custody.

Barbeau said the irony of today's raids was that eight of the aliens had been apprehended near the packing companies only last week in similar raids. In a week they had been returned to Mexico, found their way back across the border and returned to Upland. Last week border patrolmen rounded up about 30 illegal aliens in the same area.

Barbeau said each alien probably had paid as much as $250 to be smuggled back across the American border. At the canneries and packing houses, the aliens were being paid $2.25 an hour for cleaning and canning poultry and citrus, said border patrol officers.. This compares to the American workers being paid about $2.75 an hour.

Testifying to this fact was a 23-year-old Upland man who watched as the border patrolmen went about their task. The man, who asked not to be identified, said that just before Christmas he was fired from his work at the cannery and accused of hitting an alien. He said that at least 100 illegal aliens have been working at the plants.

"They take our work away from us," he said. "I have eight or nine friends who are out of jobs because of them. I'd like to see them not come back anymore."

The former employe said that while he was working in the cannery, he would always hear them talking behind the American workers back. They would tell where they were staying and hiding. "Some of them are okay," he said, "but others don't care about anybody. All they want is the American money. Two dollars in American money is about $40 in Mexican money."

Barbeau said that after the aliens are processed, his agents will be investigating the home at 184 Third Ave. to determine its ownership. "We think its a harboring house for the aliens," said Barbeau. "If we can prove it and prove that the aliens caught inside were induced to go there by their employers, the employers could face a $2,000 fine for each alien found inside and or five years in state prison for each."

Barbeau said it was very difficult to prove that companies keep harboring houses. He added that there is no law prohibiting companies from hiring illegal aliens in the United States at the present time. But, he pointed out that a bill that would prohibit the hiring of illegal aliens is now being argued by the state.

Walnut school board adopts cutback lists

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The Walnut school board Monday night unanimously adopted two proposed lists of cutbacks to be put into effect in the 1977-78 and 1978-79 school budgets.

The 10 category one cuts totaling $140,000 will be utilized whether or not the revenue limit increase measure on the March 8 election ballot passes. An additional 17 cuts in category two totaling $344,000 will be instigated only in the event the revenue limit fails to win voter approval.

In addition to the two lists, trustees adopted recommendations from Supt. David Brown which call for district department heads to assemble their budgets still looking for any additional cuts which may be made in place of the category one and two cuts. Brown also called for the staff to continue to monitor "the activity in Sacramento and be prepared to reinstate reductions or eliminations and/or determine to levy less than the $75 revenue limit increase (if approved) if additional income is assured from the state."

The revenue limit increase in the March election could provide an additional $75 per pupil for the district throughout the next two school years. A $58 increase which expires in June was approved by the voters two years ago.

Representatives of the PASS committee which is working for the passage of the revenue limit increase were present Monday and announced their first mailing to gain voter support is scheduled to go out Wednesday.

Trustee Richard Vind asked PASS committee members if they had had any feedback yet on the mood of the electorate going into the election to approve the increase. Both Vind and the committee workers agreed things so far, on an informal basis, looked negative. However, workers were quick to point out that their campaign has not yet reached full steam.

The board approved 10 category one cutbacks which will go into effect next year. Included were elimination of permanent substitute teachers, reduction of consultant services, reduction of contingency account to $200,000, elimination of the mini grant program, limitation of staff and board attendance at conferences, limitation of mentally gifted minor program spending, limit use of classified substitutes, curtail curriculum development activities, reduce grounds care services by one position and reduce field trips by 50 per cent.

Other cutbacks, ranging from a reduction in warehouse and delivery services to a five-period day for Walnut High School, will go into effect if the revenue limit increase fails.

Free immunizations to be given here

Immunization against 10-day measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given free of charge at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona, Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m.

These immunizations are given in the evening clinic on the second Wednesday of each month. A review of children and adult immunization records will be provided to determine the immunizations needed by each individual.

A total of 738 children up to 18 years of age were immunized against measles in a special clinic held Saturday at the center.

During the two Saturday clinics in Pomona, more persons were immunized than in any of the other clinics held in the San Gabriel Valley, according to health department officials.

Parents are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to protect their children and themselves against these dangerous, yet preventable, diseases.

Children must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. Previous immunization records should be brought to the clinic.

A high blood pressure testing clinic for adults will be held at the same time.

Spanish-speaking personnel will be available at the clinic.

Additional information about the evening clinic may be obtained by calling 623-6811, ext. 528.

Carpenter said no action would be taken at the meeting and gave no reason for the elimination of the public session.

Boy robbed by older youth

A 15-year-old boy was robbed of $4 by an older youth who grabbed him and demanded his money in a Pomona alley late Monday afternoon.

The victim, Robert G. Cunningham, said his attacker walked out of a market with him and when they reached a north-south alley in the rear of the 700 block of N. Indian Hill Blvd., the youth grabbed him.

The thief was described as black, 18 years old, 6 feet tall and weighing 170 pounds. He wore a blue or green shirt and blue jeans.

After getting the money, he ran northbound in the alley.

Woman raped, beaten

A 22-year-old Montclair woman told police she was beaten, raped and robbed by two men who jumped out of a car and attacked her as she was walking home on Vernon Avenue in Montcldir late Monday night.

Montclair police said two men, both blacks, jumped out of a car and struck her. She was knocked unconscious and the men then sexually attacked her before taking a small amount of cash from her purse.

The woman described the car the men were driving as a white vehicle, possibly a Pontiac, with a white vinyl top. One of the attackers was described as being 25, 5 feet 5, 125 pounds, of medium complexion. He had an afro hair cut, a gold tooth and was wearing a red beret, a red double breasted sportcoat, white scarf, black silk scarf, black pants, and a belt with a buckle shaped like a fist. The second man is described as being 28, 5 feet 9, 130 pounds, with an afro and a mustache. He was wearing black clothing and white shoes with silver buckles.

Guilty verdict in '75 killing of Cal Poly prof

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

A Los Angeles Superior Court jury Monday returned a verdict of guilty against Richard Sinnott, 18-year-old Arizonan charged with murdering Cal Poly Professor William C. Warner in Diamond Bar in 1975.

But the trial judge, Phillip F. Jones, ruled earlier that the most severe verdict the panel could consider was that of second-degree murder, not first-degree as sought by the prosecutor, Deputy Dist. Atty. Clifton Garrott.

Monday the jury returned a verdict of guilty of second-degree murder. Jones scheduled his probation hearing and sentencing for Feb. 28 and ordered him to remain in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

It was the young Tempe man's second trial on charges of murdering the 53-year-old professor of urban planning. His first ended with the jury deadlocked on the murder count, but the panel ruled him innocent of an accompanying charge of robbery.

Warner was beaten to death in the second-floor bedroom of his Diamond Bar apartment in October of 1975.

Sinnott, and a companion, Dennis M. Sheehan, 26, of Phoenix, met Warner in a Pomona tavern and accompanied him to his apartment. Sheriff's homicide investigators charged that while Sheehan was in the first-floor livingroom, listening to records, Sinnott was upstairs beating Warner to death.

Stabbing death trial goes to jury today?

A Pomona Superior Court jury was expected to receive the murder case today of Ki Duc Kim, 24-year-old Korean charged with stabbing to death a young Ontario man in a music practice room of Azusa Pacific College Oct. 7.

Kim, of Los Angeles, is charged with murder in the slaying of David Kim Brunk, 20, himself a native of Korea. Authorities charged that the men were rivals for the affections of a young woman, also Korean.

In his closing argument, Deputy Public Defender Clark Shacklett asked the jury to disregard the emotional testimony earlier of the victim's relatives and consider only the facts of the case. Kim has not denied stabbing the victim, but claims that he went out of his mind during a confrontation with Brunk that night and recalls no details of the incident after, according to him, Brunk pulled a knife.

Kim did not testify during the trial.

Testimony indicated that Kim was highly skilled in karate and Shacklett told the jury that he probably could kill anyone with his bare hands. Why, if Kim had intended to kill Brunk, would he have used a knife instead of karate, Shacklett asked. He said the incident occurred on the spur of the moment and in the heat of passion and more closely fit the offense of manslaughter than murder.

Other witnesses told of hearing loud voices inside the practice room, then the noise of furniture being knocked about and finally screams. One told of seeing a figure flee past a window before Brunk's body was discovered in the blood-splattered room.

The knife was never found. Authorities said that Kim told them he tossed it from his car while driving along either the 605 or the 210 freeways.

Claremont teachers ask 8% pay boost in contract

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont Faculty Association, representing teachers, has asked the Claremont Unified School for an eight per cent pay increase, a family dental plan paid by the district, and an increase in the salary paid for extra tasks, driver training, and summer school.

Chris Ulrich, co-president of the CFA, Monday night presented the association's master contract proposal to the school board.

Mrs. Ulrich said that the master contract proposal is based primarily on reactions to the 1976-77 contract, and that CFA represents all the teachers, whether they are members of CFA or not.

Citing that items other than strictly monetary ones are foremost in the minds of teachers, Mrs. Ulrich said that teachers find the present requirement of seven hours a day plus 180 hours of additional responsibilities a school year "highly offensive, but not because the majority do not spend that much time on assignments."

"Teachers feel that not being able to be flexible in choosing where and when to do their after-school preparation is restrictive," Mrs. Ulrich said, "and certainly does not contribute to the feeling that teachers in Claremont are highly-trained professional people."

She noted that the present contract does not recognize the many hours teachers spend beyond seven hours a day in school.

She explained that the proposed contract repeats what teachers asked for last year — that no elementary class have more than 25 students. She said that class size is of primary importance to teachers.

Mrs. Ulrich said the proposed contract includes a long transfer section that a teacher's rights will be protected and the interests of students will be of primary concern if a teacher is transferred from one assignment to another.

She mentioned a proposed early retirement incentive program for teachers 55 or older and who have worked in the district at least 10 years. They may serve in the district as consultants.

Under the proposal such a consultant would serve up to 25 days or 200 hours a year, work as an independent contractor, and sign a contract not to exceed five years.

Mrs. Ulrich said that a proposed article on safety conditions of employment would give teachers appropriate means of self-protection in cases of assault by students and would insure that hazardous conditions be reported and acted upon.

The article proposes that a teacher may, when necessary, use reasonable force in the performance of his or her duties in the interest of self-protection, and that under such circumstances the teacher must exercise mature judgment, acting and reacting in a reasonable and prudent manner.

Mrs. Ulrich noted that the proposed contract reflects an agreement of the majority of teachers to keep a no-strike article.

"If teachers agree to a contract through ratification and if they have a satisfactory means of pursuing grievances, there should be no sufficient reason to strike."

Copies of the proposed master contract will be available at the district office and the Claremont Public Library for public perusal. The public will be given the opportunity to react to the proposal at the board's Feb. 22 meeting.

Negotiations should start April 1, according to a schedule read to the board by Supt. Richard Kirkendall.

Carter may ask $15 billion more

Only modest changes in Ford budget seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter probably will propose relatively modest changes in the fiscal 1978 budget he inherited from former President Gerald R. Ford, budget analysts say.

One congressional analyst said Monday he expects Carter may ask Congress to approve $15 billion in additional spending to the $440 billion Ford proposed just before leaving office.

About half of that potential increase, $7.6 billion, would be for the jobs and public works programs Carter already has proposed for fiscal 1978 as part of his two-year $31-billion plan to stimulate the economy.

With the additional $15 billion, outlays for the year would be about $455 billion, if Congress gives its approval. The budget deficit could be about $57 billion, up from the $47 billion Ford proposed.

A spokesman for Carter's Office of Management and Budget said the President still hasn't made final decisions on the budget changes he will propose. Congress also could easily add to what Carter does recommend.

The spokesman said Carter probably will not be ready to send his budget proposals to Congress until Feb. 21. That is the date the congressional Joint Economic Committee has set for its first hearing on the 1978 budget.

"If they can beat that date, they will," he said. But he said the amount of work involved in amending Ford's budget already has pushed the new administration well past its original target date of Feb. 15.

Fiscal 1978 begins Oct. 1.

Carter's proposals will be contained in a budget document of about 100 pages that will be accompanied by a presidential statement explaining the changes, the spokesman said.

Budget Director Bert Lance has said Carter will not try to rewrite the entire Ford budget, but will concentrate in areas that he feels are of major importance, such as defense and human aid programs operated by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carter already has announced that his two-year economic stimulus program would cut taxes by $8.2 billion in fiscal 1978 and increase outlays for jobs and public works programs by $7.6 billion.

In addition, analysts say it is certain he will recommend restoring several billion in reductions Ford had proposed in various human aid programs, including $2 billion from Medicare, $1.2 billion from child nutrition programs, including school lunches, and $800 million from food stamps.

Congress would be unlikely to approve those cuts in any event.

Carter already has recommended restoring $1.1 billion that Ford would have cut by allowing the public service employment program to expire in 1978.

Carter has said some of his spending increases for jobs programs would be offset by an increase in revenues, plus a reduction in outlays for welfare and unemployment benefits, a total of about $8 billion.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has proposed reducing the defense department's record budget by about $2.8 billion from the $123 billion that Ford requested in total spending authority.

Search bush for killers of missionaries

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Security forces hunted through the rain-soaked bush for black guerrillas who killed seven white missionaries on Sunday. The government announced today that guerrillas attacked a second mission, burning and looting offices.

A communique said there were no casualties reported in the raid on Nyashanu mission 125 miles southeast of Salisbury near the Mozambique border. About $5,400 was taken and a mission workshop and office were burned.

The government did not identify the denomination of the mission or indicate when the attack occurred.

Black guerrillas, apparently a different group, killed three Jesuits and four Dominican nuns in a Sunday night raid at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Mission, 26 miles northeast of the capital and about 150 miles from Nyashanu.

Today's communique said 10 guerrillas had been killed by government forces in the past two days and that eight African civilians were killed by guerrillas. Two blacks died after being caught in a crossfire and another died when his car hit a mine, it said.

Supt. John Potter said the 12 gunmen who invaded St. Paul's, in the Musami tribal area, were armed with Soviet weapons and were members of the outlawed Zimbabwe African National Union — ZANU — "under the alleged control of Robert Mugabe."

Restraining order issued

Supervisors can't have Watson campaign files

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Supervisors will not have access to Assessor Philip Watson's campaign records when they resume an investigation into county assessment practices and alleged misuse of public funds.

A temporary restraining order barring supervisors from demanding the records was issued Monday by Superior Court Judge Charles Phillips at the requst of Watson and William B. Ross.

Ross had been subpoenaed to turn over records from the political public relations firm of Buas and Ross, the public relations firm which worked for Watson in his campaigns for assessor and in his unsuccessful effort to win approval for Proposition 14, a property tax limit initiative, in 1972.

The court order Monday keeps supervisors from ordering that the records be turned over pending a hearing Feb. 18

FORSOOTH, 'TIS THE FONZ — Henry Winkler, left, better known as the leather-jacketed Fonzie in television series, Happy Days, plays Romeo in a television special,"Henry Winkler Meets William Shakespeare." The CBS show was taped at the American Shakespeare Theater Festival in Stratford, Conn. It will introduce young audiences to the Bard's best-known works.

Channel Z

Stars view films at home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie stars once had only two ways of seeing the latest flicks: either arrange a private screening at a studio or face a horde of crazed autograph seekers at a local theater.

Now a cable television company, which serves such wealthy communities as Beverly Hills, Brentwood, Bel Air and other neighborhoods where the stars live, is offering an alternative: an additional channel on the TV set that brings in the latest movies.

Theta Cable TV began showing current films on its "Z Channel" two years ago. The subscriber list reads almost like screen credits for a blockbuster motion picture:

Carol Burnett, Norm Crosby, Cary Grant, Jack Carter, Jack Albertson, Vicki Carr, Kay Ballard, Richard Thomas, Bruce Dern, Barry Sullivan, Rock Hudson, Cornell Wilde, Della Reese, Greg Morris, Greer Garson, Fernando Lamas, Groucho Marx, Johnny Carson, Stella Stevens, Connie Stevens, Bill Macy, Bob Newhart, Chuck Connors, Lou Rawls and, as they say in the trade, a cast of thousands.

The cable service originally was intended to serve fringe areas that get poor TV reception. For that reason alone, many Hollywood stars became subscribers. It saved the cost of installing a fancy roof antenna, too.

When the Z Channel began, "a lot of movie stars saw it as a way to see the latest films without leaving their house," said a spokesman for Theta. "And a lot of Academy (of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences) members who have to vote on the Oscars saw it as a way of seeing the films they have to vote on."

Ron Stein of the Theta programming department says, "We occasionally show a film so Academy voters can see it. For instance, last week we showed "Face to Face" starring Liv Ullman and next week we'll show "The Shootist," with John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn as a service to Academy members." Those films received one showing only.

Theta executives try to get films onto the Z Channel as soon as they finish exclusive runs in theaters and such movies as "The Sting" and "Return of the Pink Panther" have been aired within days of ending exclusive appearances.

"We use a booking agent service," says Stein of Theta, "and we are using just about everything available to us right now." He said Federal Communications Commission pay television regulations do not permit the use of films older than three years or less than 10 years.

"We put on two new titles each week, and that's 104 new titles every year," said a spokesman for the firm. "Nobody sees that many films in theaters in a year."

Theta has not yet shown any X-rated films and screens its first-run features each day of the week, Friday through Thursday, an average of twice a day. Each week there also is a rerun of a previously shown feature, giving those who missed it the first time through a second chance.

The Z service costs about $18 a month and at present half of the 80,000 regular channel cable subscribers of Theta purchase the Z channel as well. Included in the service is a magazine which has time schedules of the films along with a synopsis of the plot.

Shortest term listed

CHICAGO (AP) — William H. Harrison served the shortest presidential term in U.S. history. According to World Book Encyclopedia, he caught cold during his inauguration and died 30 days later. He was the first President to die in office.

Gallery to stage comedy

Gallery Theater, Ontario, will open the comedy, "The Impossible Years," at 8 p.m. Feb. 25. It will play at that hour Fridays and Saturdays for several weekends.

The play tells of a psychiatrist writing a book on how to raise teen-age daughters and having little luck raising his own.

The cast includes Richard C. Mitchell, Dr. Kingsley; Donna Sweeney, Mrs. Kingsley; Dee Dee Jernigan, Linda; Bobbi Lynn Moore, Abbey; Lavinia Smith, Miss Hammer; James Kaufman, Dr. Fleisher; Rich Huffine, Arnold Brecher; Bob Boshea, Richard Merrick; Tim Bagot, Smuts, and Rick Simpson, Bruce Colby, Janet Ford, Marlo Whitlock and Frank Brown as friends.

Reservations can be made at 982-5357.

PREVENTING SMOG, CONSERVING GAS

Of the 2,150 students enrolled at Claremont High School, an estimated 450 of them use bicycles for transportation. The majority of the students' bicycles are parked in racks directly west of the administration building and are subject to vandalism and thievery, even in broad daylight. Monitors provide close patrol over the parking area in an effort to protect the bikes, most of which are fairly costly. Other Claremont students, probably those who do not own bicycles, arrive at school in cars, on buses, on foot and the most agile on skateboards. Looks like Detroit lost this round.

Claiming "moral conscience," three members of the Montclair City Council defeated the adoption of an ordinance Monday night that would have legalized bingo.

Although resident sentiment was far in the majority supporting bingo in the West End town, seven Protestant ministers swayed enough councilmen to defeat the ordinance.

When the vote finally came, Councilman Nelson Gentry, who admitted he frequented Las Vegas, and Councilman Paul Jones voted against bingo. Councilman Ernest Rowley, who two weeks ago said he would abide by the sentiments of the electorate, abstained. The abstention became a negative vote, according to interpretation of the government code by City Atty. Eugene Demchuk.

Mayor Harold Hayes and Councilman Tom McClure were alone in agreeing with the speakers and representatives of various non-profit organizations that use bingo as fundraisers to support youth, service and senior citizen projects.

Hayes reported the voting tabulation on a state proposition last June when Montclair residents cast 2,684 yes votes for bingo, 1,174 against and 323 didn't vote on the issue at all. He pointed out that this was a 3 to 1 vote ratio in favor of legalized bingo.

The proponents argued that bingo provides entertainment for the elderly and handicapped; generates funds for such groups as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies, Little League and elderly programs; and curtails juvenile delinquency problems by keeping youth in youth organizations.

The Rev. Paul Horn of the First Baptist Church of Montclair read a petition by Protestant ministers in "strong opposition" to bingo. They charged that it "destroys the moral fibre of the individual" and "will attract undesirables to this area with all the attendant crime."

But it was enough to sway two councilmen to cast definitive no votes.

In interpreting Rowley's vote as a negative vote, Demchuk pointed out that it was not merely a matter of Roberts' Rules of Order. On the adoption of a city ordinance, the state government code had to be brought into play.

Following a recess to ascertain the exact rule, Demchuk said, "It is my opinion that the provision in the government code requires at least three affirmative votes to pass. Therefore, the ordinance has failed."

As the supporters filed out, they charged "People don't count in this city."

Is smog bad? San Dimas boy is sick of it

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Smog is bad. It makes children sick. Take it from 9-year-old Wade Lewis of 1421 Kirkwall Road, San Dimas.

Wade, a student in Rosemary Wohlhieter's class at Gladstone Elementary School, relayed his complaint in a two-page letter to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

"Congressman Jim Lloyd," began Wade's letter. "I have a conplaint! I don't mean to be rood. I'm only nine but I'm serious, lots of times I've got sick because I went to play and I got smog in my chest and had to go to the Dr. and the shot didn't feel so good, and so please, I no you can't move the mountains from blocking the smog, but you can do somthing about the factorys.

"Well that's about all I have to say.

"P.S. Write when you found out something."

Across the top of his letter, Wade had printed in large letters "Stop Pollution."

Wade's letter received immediate attention. Lloyd wrote back: "Dear Wade: Thanks for writing about our problem with smog. You mentioned some of the reasons it is so bad in the Los Angeles area. Besides the industries and automobiles, the mountains add to the smog problem by keeping the air over the Los Angeles Basin. "Last fall," Lloyd continued, "the House passed amendments to the Clean Air Act. These amendments ran into trouble in the Senate, and didn't become law. Congress will try again this spring, however, and I expect them to be approved.

"The amendments will continue to give California an exemption from auto emission standards. This is good for our area, because it allows the state to set anti-pollution levels even higher than the rest of the country. The law also forbids California from setting standards below the rest of the country.

"Another part of the Clean Air Act Amendments which will be considered deals with industrial pollution. When we voted last year, I supported limits on how much areas will be allowed to deteriorate in air quality. I also voted for curbs on industrial wastes.

"When the bill comes up again this year, I think these proposals will be accepted. "We both know that this is not the final answer to the smog problem. I think it is a good start, however, and legislation we can build on."

La Verne seeks help for its new civic center

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The La Verne City Council wants to establish a new civic center uptown, but needs a partner.

The council would like to move city hall from its present location at 2061 Third St. to the Shea Building at D Street and Foothill Boulevard if agreeable terms can be negotiated.

The council directed City Manager George Caswell to ask County Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum's support for a new county library branch at the same location.

The Shea building would be bought and the library would be established under a joint-powers agreement which would allow the sale of bonds without an election.

"The library branch we now have is not worthy of the city," Caswell declared. "It is substandard for a growing community of our size."

Caswell was directed by the Council to contact Edward Shea, owner of the 16,000-square-foot building, and work out terms for either an outright sale or a lease-purchase agreement. The council is willing to pay $750,000 for the building and two acres of land on which it stands. If the county agrees to build the library, an additional two acres could be bought that would provide not only room for the building but additional parking, Caswell said.

The council's action to move the city hall was taken after Caswell and City Treasurer Gerry Peck assured its members that the bonds could be retired within five years, if necessary.

Mrs. Peck said that based on the experience of the past five years and the projection of the next five, the city should have a surplus of revenue over expenditures amounting to $1.4 million.

Moreover, she said, the city will pay off its 1957 municipal bonds by next August, and the council could continue an 8-cent levy that will produce $30,000 to $35,000 a year.

This will enable the city to embark on other capital improvements, in addition to the city hall, Caswell said.

The city manager said that if the county declines to join the city in a joint-powers agreement there were other possible partners.

He said the city could form an independent Community Redevelopment Agency as a partner, or could join forces with the Bonita School Board.

But he emphasized that the most advantageous would be a county partnership since it would yield a new library for the community.

Phillips Ranch developers facing planning problems

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Developers are eager to begin building the first of almost 2,000 homes planned for the Phillips Ranch property, but many planning problems still stand in the way, the Pomona City Council learned Monday night.

City Planner Sanford Sorenson told the council that the developers "are pushing very hard because the housing market has never been better," but that some preliminary tract maps and grading plans will have to be rejected.

"Some of them are so bad we'd just waste time trying to make corrections," he said.

As an example, Sorenson pointed to a grading map for one section of the development that calls for major grading of hillsides — which is exactly the type of thing the city is trying desparately to prevent.

"We're going to have to ask them to rethink their position," said Sorenson.

In another case, he called a tract map "unimaginative" in the design of streets within the project.

Despite those criticisms, however, Sorenson said he is optimistic.

"It's very exciting. There is a lot of potential. But there are a lot of places where mistakes could be made that we would have to live with forever if we're not careful," he said.

Sorenson told the Progress Bulletin that the developer, Westmor Development Co., and its builders still might be able to get construction started in May.

He predicted that if everything falls into place construction could total $150 million over the next four years.

At present, some 1,900 housing units are anticipated for the entire project, with an average current value of between $60,000 and $65,000 each.

Chaffey school board adopts a conflict of interest code

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

A unique conflict of interest code was adopted Monday night by the Chaffey school board after members voiced fear the limited, state-mandated financial disclosure statements may be in violation of individual privacy rights or lead to "criminal" misuse.

The code adopted came just three days before the state's deadline, and may be the first in terms of a school board attempting to restrict public access to financial records of those required to file information with the state.

The Chaffey code, which must be approved by the Fair Political Practices Commission, would make financial statements by board members, the superintendent and other top district administrators, "confidential information."

The board members were uncertain what attitude the Fair Political Practices Commission would take toward their code.

After-hours dancing request turned down

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

After-hours dancing will still not be permitted at night spots in unincorporated areas of San Bernardino County.

The county Board of Supervisors Monday — hearing strong opposition from the sheriff's department to the dancing — denied a request from a tavern owner to change the county ordinance which prohibits dancing from 2 a.m. to 8 a.m.

A major concern voiced by the sheriff's staff was that sufficient manpower was not available to police the dancing establishments in the morning hours. "There would be an increase in bar fights, drunks and after-hours disturbances in general," said Capt. Donald Inglis of the Fontana sheriff's substation.

Inglis noted the dancing request came from the Dodge City West Bar in Bloomington, which had violated the existing county law numerous times. He also said a number of other crimes had occurred at the tavern over the past six months after 2 a.m.

"We're not opposing this for puritanical or moralistic reasons," Inglis claimed. "For some reason, the state legislature felt 2 a.m. was long enough for these places to stay open. If they did stay open later, who would know if they're selling liquor?"

Supervisors' Chairman Robert Townsend of Chino, whose district includes the Bloomington bar, strongly opposed the after-hours request. "I feel 2 a.m. is a reasonable hour to cut down on noise. You have a children's school 150 feet from that particular tavern."

Other board members — notably Dennis Hansberger of Yucaipa — had favored the request two weeks ago when it first came up. "I remain in sympathy with the request," Hansberger said Monday. "However, because it costs us in excess of $20 million to operate a law enforcement arm in the county, I'd be opposed to anything that goes beyond that."

Supervisor James Mayfield of Apple Valley said he would be inclined to favor the request if it had not come from "an organization with a bad track record."

Gary Meza, owner of Dodge City West, claimed there are some "archaic laws" existing in the county. "There used to be a law that you couldn't bowl on Sundays. And there have been blue laws throughout the country."

Meza said all liquor is removed from tables and not served after 2 a.m. "We check everyone at the door and no alcohol is brought in after hours."

Dancing is "freedom of expression," he added. It doesn't seem right that the law is against that. People can look at pornography but they can't dance."

Stemming the tide

One of the major complaints of businesses, next to excessive government regulations, is the tremendous amount of paperwork required to comply with those regulations. The paperwork burden on business, the public and the government itself is currently estimated at $40 billion a year.

In October 1975, Congress established the Commission on Federal Paperwork to study the problem and make recommendations, giving it a life of two years. Inevitably, the commission began generating new paperwork of its own, but it has also scored some notable achievements in stemming the paperwork tide.

According to a status report by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the commission has taken more than 300 antipaperwork actions, including:

—Elimination of approximately 50 million separate forms confirming government contractor adherence to equal employment regulations;

—Assisting the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in developing a single application form for 41 federal and state welfare and income security programs, with a potential savings of $6 billion yearly.

One of the commission's legislative recommendations, which Congress has enacted, requires detailed wage reporting annually instead of quarterly for social security purposes, saving employers more than $250 million a year.

The commission has also set up an ombudsman's office to receive complaints from the public. In one case, a small mushroom grower in California was frustrated by duplicative information requests from the International Trade Commission and the Department of Labor. He estimated that compliance with these requests would cost him at least 90 hours of an accountant's time.

The ombudsman contacted the two agencies, examined the forms and recommended that only one agency collect the information and share it with the other.

When he was in the White House, President Ford also gave a firm push to paperwork reform. A 12.5 per cent reduction in the number of executive branch forms was achieved by July 1976, with an additional five per cent reduction ordered by September 1977 and a further 15 per cent by September 1978.

The Internal Revenue Service has cut out 724 forms, a reduction of 31 per cent. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms cut 25 per cent of its report forms and the Civil Aeronautics Board eliminated 26 per cent of its forms.

Unfortunately, while all this progress was being made, more was added to the federal paperwork flood by recent legislation.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development Uniform Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) and the Department of Labor Employe Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) have alone added over 6.4 million hours to the paperwork reporting chore, says the Chamber of Commerce.

Modern-day dinosaur

A sight to gladden the eye of any Arab sheik is the "world's longest car," currently on view at the Greater New York Automobile Show in New York City.

The specially designed Cadillac limousine is 26 feet, 9 inches long, took a crew of more than 100 men and women 18 months to build, and contains two L-shaped sofas, a stereo system with six speakers and tape deck, two refrigerators, bar, intercom network, overhead air-conditioning and three telephones — but only one TV set.

The car's electrical system uses three separate batteries. Three antitheft devices automatically dial the police. The fuel tank holds 43 gallons of gasoline, but no one is saying how many miles that would get you.

This is what George Rommey, the compact car pioneer, would have called a real gas-guzzling dinosaur. The description is even more apt today.

An automotive monster like this is about as viable in today's energy-conscious environment as the reptile behemoths that once ruled the earth. Like their big bones on display in the museums, it's a curiosity to ooh and aah over, but nothing you'd want to have in your garage.

Clarifies retired pay

Dear Editor:

This letter is in reference to the Associated Press article on the front page of the Progress Bulletin Jan. 24, 1977, entitled "Military Pensions Grow — and Grow — and Grow."

The article contains several part-truths and inaccuracies, which indicates the author is not a responsible journalist.

First of all, persons retired from the military are subject to involuntary recall to active duty in time of emergency. The pay they receive is in part a retainer for this contingency. Retired pay is not a "pension" and has been so ruled by the comptroller general of the United States.

Secondly, retired pay is pegged to active duty pay only on the day the person receiving it retires; and then only to the basic pay portion of active duty pay. Basic allowances for quarters and subsistence do not enter into computations of retired pay even though they form part of active duty pay. After the initial calculation, retired pay bears no relation to active duty pay.

Lastly the statement "The military system is more generous than the federal government's civilian retirement system and all major private pension plans" gives no recognition whatever to the special nature of the serviceman's career. It does not recognize the long periods of separation from family, the requirement to go where sent, the risks of hazardous duty entailing wounds or death nor the liability for recall after retirement in time of emergency; all of which are involuntary.

The Progress Bulletin has from time to time in the recent past carried articles dealing with its rights of freedom of the press so that the public may be assured of the truth. I agree with these rights. The article to which I responded with this letter, however, detracts from the credibility of the claim that the public is given the truth by the news media — the whole truth.

Gerald Ford's farewell address

WASHINGTON — This is the story of an historic speech that was never made — the farewell address to the nation of its 38th president, Gerald Ford.

As he approached the end of his presidency, Ford remembered the eloquence of Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower when they bid good-bye to their countrymen. Ford felt he, too, had a legacy to leave.

He wanted to make a lasting impression on the nation, to leave a watchword for the future, like Eisenhower's parting warning about the military-industrial complex.

Ford quietly put his speechwriters to work on a farewell message, and they made an extra effort to catch the mood of the retiring president. The drafts were submitted to Ford's old friend and wordsmith, Robert Hartmann.

At times, Ford thought he would like to deliver his farewell to his beloved House of Representatives, where he served for 24 years. Other times, he favored a more informal fireside chat. In the end, he decided a farewell appearance would be too pretentious. It was characteristic of Jerry Ford that he chose to depart Washington as simply as possible.

The message he wanted to leave was being packed into boxes of confidential papers, which hold the written record of the Ford administration. But we were able to obtain two drafts of the unspoken farewell address. One was written by Patrick Butler, the other by George Denison. Both contain the parting advice that Ford wanted his countrymen to remember.

He would have liked to have told all Americans; as Butler phrased it: "In a nation as populous and diverse as ours, a nation whose borders spread a continent wide, it is unwise perhaps to ask for a return to simpler times.

"But we can ask for—we can demand — less regimentation, less uniformity, less regulation of our daily lives. We can demand to be treated with the respect and the dignity that is our birthright as American citizens . . .

"If my presidency meant nothing else in the scheme of things, let it be said that my administration took the first steps on a different path that leads not to bigger government but to better government."

Denison's draft put the same message even more forcefully: "Government has spent too much time and far too much money answering the demands of the pressure groups at the expense of the individual," he would have had the departing president say. "In our complex and collectivized society, the individual — the forgotten American — has been shunted aside, his wants unmet, his goals unfulfilled . . .

"If we are to avoid economic collapse, we must stop the runaway growth of government. We must stop living beyond our means, as too many of our political leaders irresponsibly give in to demands for more and more spending — without concern for the future . . .

"We can no longer afford to be misled by the trusty bromide that eliminating bureaucratic waste and overlapping programs will cure all . . . It is time for the American people to look their government straight in the eye and say, "'No more! We will make the decisions about our lives. You protect us from foreign aggressors and domestic criminals and give us a stable currency and courts of law, and we'll do the rest.'" The words were put together by the speechwriters, a big show of his farewell ideas. But down deep in his heart, he wanted Americans to remember this last message. It would be a shame if they never got a chance to read it.

CALIFANO'S OLD HAT: As the nation's new overlord of health, education and welfare, Joseph Califano is supposed to be the voice of the voiceless, the spokesman for the underprivileged. Not long ago, he was a spokesman for the oil interests, which have sometimes oppressed the underprivileged.

In a Feb. 5, 1976, column, we described his lobbying for the small refiners. They are "small," that is, by the billion-dollar standards of Big Oil. He fought for a loophole that benefitted such affluent oil enterprises as Charter, Pennzoil, Witco and Husky, all with sales far above the $100 million mark.

Despite Califano's efforts, the beneficial loophole was finally closed by Congress last year. But Califano fought to the end to keep it open. We have now obtained some private correspondence, which reveals how vigorously he fought.

Califano tried to carry the battle to the doorsteps of the Federal Energy Administration. He sought an audience with Califano's requests for a meeting.

Red with anger over the rebuff, Califano wrote Hill a sizzling letter. "I have spent many years in government service. I do not believe I ever treated individual citizens, or lawyers representing them, as shabbily as you have chosen to treat me and the small refiners I represent," complained Califano.

Hill told us that Califano wanted special treatment that no lobbyist should receive. The loophole, Hill explained, would have given Califano's clients an $8 to $10 a barrel advantage over other refiners in their areas.

A time to live, a time to die

Dying used to be so simple.

In fact and in fiction, the soldier, the gunslinger or the bedridden just gasped one final breath and that was that.

Now you can take your last breath and go on living.

Now you may be without respiration, heartbeat or brain waves and machines can keep you "living" — if you call that "living."

But a young lawyer from the tiny California town of Elk — after watching two dear friends suffer weeks of unnecessary agony — decided something must be done.

And he did it.

As of this year, at the urging of that young lawyer, now a member of the California State Assembly, Barry Keene, Californians have a "right to die."

One of the immensely valuable advantages of a system of government which allows autonomy to individual states is that those states can take turns testing innovative ideas — thus to determine whether they are good ideas for all of us to consider.

California has gone ahead of the rest of us in trying to legislate your right to die with dignity.

It's a complicated law. It requires that a living will must be signed by the patient authorizing the doctor to "pull the plug," so to speak, rather than to sustain life artificially.

This document must be witnessed by at least two people who are not related to the patient, the doctor or the hospital.

Two doctors must certify that the illness is terminal, that there is no chance for the patient to survive "naturally."

The law specifically forbids "mercy killing."

The law properly limits the prerogatives of health insurers and life insurers.

California's lawmakers thought they'd thought of everything.

Yet there is still nothing in their new law which defines "imminent death," the moment at which a doctor can justifiably withdraw life-support machinery.

That unanswered question — "When are the dead dead"? — is what has stalled similar legislation in 25 other states.

Those opposed argue that this "licenses doctors to kill the aged, the weak and the poor."

It is argued that doctors may coerce or persuade patients to make decisions they might not make otherwise.

And some states have decided to look the other way — to continue to allow doctors to do as they have been doing "unofficially"; that is, to consult with the patients and the family and to "allow death by withholding further treatment."

It is not uncommon in many hospitals for doctors to instruct their staffs with a notation on a terminal patient's chart: "DNR." That means "do not resuscitate."

But with the proliferation of malpractice lawsuits, doctors are understandably reluctant to assume such responsibility without the law on their side.

California has given them such a law. Now we'll see.

Just in jest

If you can't lick-'em, join 'em seems to be the theory on which the Russians are now operating. Anyway, in 1976 the Soviet Union decided to give one of capitalistic America's formerly frowned upon activities a whirl. That was the year the Russians started manufacturing chewing gum.

Could that have been one of the reasons the Soviet Union proudly announced it had more than fulfilled its industrial plans for 1976? — And will the next big announcement coming from behind the Iron Curtain be that the Russians have also been won over by a new item which is now the in thing in capitalistic America — President Jimmy Carter's favorite snack, fig bars covered with an inch of peanut butter?

Robbing the past

By EARL G. WATERS

Even though the "meet and confer" procedures for labor negotiations enforced upon the state employes by Gov. Jerry Brown are viewed by them as an anathema, their association is shelving its prejudices in an all-out effort to remedy the plight of its retired members.

In a conciliatory letter to the governor, William A. Craib, president of the 120,000-member California State Employes Association, has pleaded for a meeting with the governor "regarding the needs of CSEA's 22,000 retired members."

"As you know," Craib wrote, "retired employes are among those who are most severely hurt by inflation. We would like to discuss ways and means of meeting this problem.

"In addition we would like to discuss the need to provide financial protection for the spouses of retired state employes.

"I believe we should give special consideration to matters which pertain exclusively to retired state employes."

Obviously what Craib is talking about is closing the gap in pension erosions caused by inflation. In the face of cost of living rises of 10 per cent or more in each of the past several years the retirement pay adjustments have been limited to 2 per cent. Meantime, through sound investments, the employes retirement system has been growing at a rate of nearly a billion dollars a year and now exceeds $8 billion.

The retired employes, who view themselves as investors in a mutual fund, are particularly irked by the fact that the profits have been used for lowering the contribution rates for current employes rather than realistic adjustments for retirees. In fact there is some contention that employe contributions, reduced from 7 per cent to 5 per cent, are now below the "safe level." In any event, the retirees say that reducing the contributions to give present employes more take home pay, thus avoiding salary increases, at the expense of retired workers who have already paid their dues at a higher rate is morally and philosophically wrong. "They are robbing the past to pay for the present," one spokesman stated.

What Craib is seeking is an improvement in the automatic cost of living adjustments in pensions as well as a one-time increase to restore the payments to the levels intended before the inflation erosion.

He also seeks parity in survivor benefits for retirees. A good number of those retired have already been granted one-half survivor entitlements, something now automatic for all present employes.

Both the cost of living adjustments and survivor benefits have been recommended for the past several years by the board which administers the fund but require the approval of the legislature and the governor. Brown has not only refused to include the provisions in his budget even though the money would come from pension funds but has twice vetoed bills passed by the legislature to do it.

Craib said he will also seek to up the death benefit for retirees from $500 to $2,000. This is the amount paid if an employe dies immediately after retiring. It has been unchanged for many years despite inflation. Additionally, Craib will seek extension to retirees of other additional benefits provided for active employes, such as dental payments. The inequity in granting benefits to some employes in preference to others is obvious.

In view of Brown's previous vetoes Craib may be assuming too much when he writes "As you know" to the governor about the plight of the retired. In any case, although he has evidenced a willingness to meet with the governor he has indicated the association will go ahead with efforts in the legislature to protect against a rejection of the requests by the governor.

Think on these things

How often we walk the halls of memory, and how devastating it can be to us — and yet, there is also a healing in remembering, for it's like a fresh wind that blows away the sorrow and leaves whatever was beautiful to cherish.

The loveliest memories in all the world have some degree of hurt — the saddest some bit of joy. The little things that never seemed to amount to anything are suddenly important — and something that once overpowered us slips away to nothing.

And so it is practical to remember — remember so that we can understand and turn it to wisdom.

Ann Landers

Grin and bear it, honey

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I looked out of my kitchen window and could have sworn I saw an old cow across the way, munching grass between two houses. I was just about to shout to my husband and tell him a cow had wandered out of the pasture and to go put her back in.

Thank heavens I was interrupted by a phone call. A second look out the window and I discovered the "cow" was my mother-in-law wearing saddle pants.

Three weeks ago I was frightened by the sight of a tramp hanging around the machine shed. It was dusk and I quickly locked all the doors. A few minutes later I saw my husband walking toward the tramp. When they embraced I nearly fainted. The "tramp" was his mother.

To put it bluntly, Ann, the woman looks so down at the heels that it makes me sick. She also scares the daylights out of me. My mother-in-law is 74, has plenty of money to spend and is in good health. What can I do about this revolting situation? — Fargo, N.D.

Dear Fargo: Nothing. At her age she is not likely to change. So grin and bear it, honey. I just hope your eyesight remains good and thank heavens you aren't trigger-happy.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl whose 15-year-old brother is driving not only ME nuts, but the whole family as well. All he thinks about is his hair.

There is only one full bathroom in this house. We all have to wait to get in because Eric is either shampooing his golden locks or using the blow-dryer. Would you believe he goes through this routine every morning and every evening and on weekends it's three times a day?

Eric helps himself to all my hair spray, rollers, pins, shampoo, conditioner — whatever he can lay his hands on. This kid is in front of the mirror about 80 per cent of the time.

All last summer he wouldn't go swimming because he was afraid of getting his hair wet and there might not be a blow-dryer handy.

When it rains he puts on a plastic hood and looks like a dunce. Any suggestions on how to cure this loon of what appears to be an obsession with his hair? — Sis

Dear Sis: He's 15? Time is your best ally. In the meantime, the family should insist he blow-dry elsewhere and free up the bathroom. And YOU should make him buy his own beauty supplies, Sis.

Dear Ann: Just one question: Why do people who would never dream of asking a fat woman how much she weighs consider it perfectly OK to ask a well-proportioned woman who is 6 feet 1, "How tall are you?"

I'm a fairly good-natured person, but the amazement some nurds express when I circumvent the question gets my goat.

I might add, "The weather is just fine up here, you creeps." — Tall Enough, Thanks

Dear T.E.T.: In answer to your question, in case you forgot you asked: They are insensitive oafs. There is no other explanation.

'Mama's boys' fight for office

Note it claimed in print that all of the more aggressive U.S. presidents in recent years — the men who fought most competitively to get the big job — have been "mama's boys." So described were Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard Nixon and Jimmy Carter. Not so categorized in this piece, however, were Harry Truman and Gerald R. Ford, neither of whom actually sought the presidency.

CHANNEL SWIMMER

Q. "Who was the first person insofar as it's known to swim the English channel?"

A. A French soldier named Jean-Marie Faletti. In 1815, he jumped off a British prison ship at Dover and made it all the way to Bologne.

Q. "Why is a 'herring' so called?"

A. Comes from an old Anglo Saxon word "haring" which meant "multitudes." Those fish, as no doubt you know, always swim in multitudes. There's no such thing as a lonely herring, I gather.

What's the most musical phrase in all of literature? Strictly a matter of opinion, sure enough. But an Iowan nominates a line from Edgar Allen Poe's "The Raven," as follows: "And the silken sad uncertain rustling of each purple curtain . . . " Any others?

ON THE JOB

"What were you working for on your last job?" That's a common query that appears on some employment applications. Personnel people say 99 out of 100 job applicants answer the question by reporting a salary figure. The other one in 100 names some specific goal. Like pay off the mortgage. Or send the kids through college. Or sufficient experience to get a better job.

Vegetarian diet not best for cat

DEAR DR. MILLER: My boy friend, and others, have convinced me to adopt vegetarianism as a way of life. I'm trying to switch my cat, too. Lydia's less than enthusiastic, but I've heard that a lower protein diet is better for old cats anyway, so I feel justified in trying to switch her. So far, I've found she's fond of asparagus, but not much else. How long can I reasonably expect this struggle of wills to take? I realize Lydia's sort of set in her ways because she's already 13 years old. — L.W.

DEAR L.W.: Felines would rather fight than switch, even young ones, since cats are more strongly carnivorous, even, than canines. As you found, teen-age cats cruising into their golden years are extremely resistant to a change of diet, even the "wrong" brand of cat food, for example, let alone a change of this magnitude. Even if Lydia liked it, a vegetarian diet for felines is fraught with danger from dietary deficiencies. While aging animals usually require less protein, the protein itself must be of high quality and balanced to provide them with adequate amounts. Protein deficiency would accelerate aging processes, not retard them. Lydia's doctor should be consulted regarding any drastic change. Nutritional differences affect the body's metabolism in many ways, even its ability to utilize (or handle) drugs.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Lisa's the most adorable cocker puppy you ever saw. We may decide never to get her trimmed, but if we do decide to later, is there anything wrong with waiting until she's at least full grown before we do it? We think it would be nice just to let her enjoy herself and look like a puppy while she is one.

DEAR R.W.: There's no need for Lisa to be trimmed while a puppy provided you're willing to keep her adequately groomed otherwise. This involves first and most important, getting her used to the combing and handling process. If you don't do this now, a groomer could have a very difficult time handling her. Secondly, that long coat of hers would be an impenetrable matted mess long before she's an adult unless you do spend a lot of time keeping it combed out. Should you decide after all to have her professionally groomed while still a puppy, be sure that her vaccinations are completed before grooming and that you choose a patient, competent groomer (or learn to be one yourself) to do the job.

Difference between 30 and 50

Having someone complain to me about being 30 is like King Kong complaining his house is too near the airport.

What do people want from me? Compassion? Empathy? Iron tablets?

A reader from Westminster, Mass., said age 30 was a downer. I'll match you down for down.

She writes, "Thirty is having a friend whose three-year-old reads at a second-grade level." (Fifty is having a FRIEND who reads at a second-grade level.)

"Thirty is reading your alumnae magazine and wondering who all those people are." (Fifty is seeing one line written under your year: See "IN MEMORIAM.")

"Thirty is wearing support panty hose under your hot pants." (Fifty is never having to say, "Tuck in your blouse." It's always on the outside.)

"Thirty is not getting huffy when a truck driver whistles at you." (Fifty is moistening your lips and sucking in your stomach when the teakettle warms up.)

"Thirty is when your voice whispering huskily in the night means one of the kids just threw up." (Fifty is when a voice whispering huskily in the night means someone is ripping off the tricycle in the garage.)

"Thirty is dancing all night and recovering all week." (Fifty is organizing a car pool to the garbage can.)

"Thirty is no longer being able to mouth off about the bourgeois establishment because all you talk about is the price of lettuce and the wallpaper in the bathroom." (Fifty doesn't want to believe that Shirley Temple Black is toilet-trained.)

"Thirty is getting your last kid in nursery school and being bored with people who talk about Montessori." (Fifty doesn't care what kids do so long as they have clean hands.)

"Thirty is being the same weight you were five years ago, but the tops are looser and the bottoms won't zip." (Fifty is adjusting to a world without mirrors.)

"Thirty is being flattered to have your ID checked at the bar for age." (Fifty wouldn't show her ID to her parish priest even if he swore to regard it as privileged information.)

How do I know so much about 50-year-olds, you ask?

I've gained their trust and they confide in me. Few 30-year-olds can pull that off.

Dr. Lamb

Intolerance isn't an allergy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read in your column about a product called Lact-Aid which splits milk lactose into digestible sugars. The symptoms that accompany intolerance to lactose were described as gas, diarrhea and indigestion.

I, too, am allergic to milk. My symptoms are sneezing and congested sinuses. The only times I have been able to use milk were the last two months of my pregnancies and the first two months after delivery.

If it is protein in milk that I am sensitive to is there some way that it can be treated to make it more agreeable? Also, I have been refused as a blood donor because of the allergy. I sure would like to be able to use cow's milk. Thank you for any assistance.

DEAR READER — Lactose intolerance results from being unable to split milk sugar (lactose). That is not the same thing as milk allergy which is a reaction to milk protein. That is why your symptoms are different. You were able to use milk at the end of your pregnancy because the increased hormone production at that time causes a woman to be less sensitive to allergies. It is a bit like having your own built-in production of steroid hormones that we use to treat severe allergies.

I want to take this opportunity to caution people against thinking that solving the much more common lactose intolerance problem will mean they will not be allergic to milk. True milk allergy occurs mostly in infants before the digestive system matures. Incompletely digested protein is absorbed into the bloodstream and the body reacts in an allergic manner. As the child grows older the intestine matures so that undigested protein is not absorbed and the problem may disappear. In lactose intolerance problems the common form appears as the child grows older and is most severe in adults, not children.

You may be able to use some of the milk substitutes that you could find in the section for infant foods. Pick one that has no milk in it. Some of these are made with soybean products and are a very good substitute for milk. Different brands taste a great deal different so if you don't like the first brand try something else.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you a more complete understanding of lactose intolerance in these foods. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Treating milk with Lact-Aid is very helpful for all those adults who have symptoms from lactose intolerance. It can make the difference between being able to drink and use milk and not being able to. However, its action is limited to splitting the double sugar, lactose. It has no action on milk proteins at all. So, while it helps people with the most common type of milk intolerance it does not help the few people like you who have a real allergy to milk protein.

Individuals with some medical problems, particularly regional enteritis (Crohn's disease) and ulcerative colitis are intolerant to milk. Milk may precipitate acute attacks of their illness. In some of these individuals the intolerance is related solely to lactose intolerance as part of the disease and possibly in others there may be a sensitivity — or allergic-like — reaction which may cause attacks of the illness.

Jacoby's bridge

2nd jump shows weakness

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

In rebidding after you start with a forcing two bid, you should try to keep in mind that you have already shown a very good hand. Hence, you should try to bid delicately and not always leap into a slam merely because you have heard a positive response. In the next few articles we will show examples of successful rebidding and suggest a few conventions to use with your regular partners.

The first valuable convention is that when you jump rebid in your suit you are showing both a solid suit and an opening two bid that is rather shy on high cards.

South will make a grand slam if West opens a spade or a club. He will make six against a heart lead and will be held to five if a diamond is opened.

NORTH 8

♥ A K 8 6 3
♦ J 9 3 2

WEST

♥ J 5 2
♦ K Q 10 4
♣ 10 7 5 2

EAST
♠ 9 3
♥ Q 10 9 4
♦ A 7 5
♣ 9 8 6 3

SOUTH (D)
♠ A K Q J 8 7 6 5
♥ 7
♦ 8 6
♣ A K

East-West vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			2 ♠
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead — K ♦

North knows there must be some danger, somewhere after South's rebid takes the form of a jump in his own suit. Still, North feels that he should bid beyond game. North also knows that South does not need trump support so North invites the slam by bidding five spades.

South looks at his two quick diamond losers and passes right there.

Ask the Jacobys

We continue with our discussion of differences between rubber and duplicate laws.

One conspicuous difference is the revoke penalty which is now just one trick in duplicate play with the provision that an adjustment can be made if a player gains by his revoke. It is still two tricks in rubber bridge, but will probably go to one when the new laws appear.

CIF calendar will dictate changes

Boys' basketball and soccer and girls' field hockey figure to be the sports most affected by changes in the new CIF sports calendar for the 1978-79 school year.

The CIF Executive Council finished the calendar last week. It was drawn up with an eye to two dictates of the CIF Council, which is composed of a representative from each of the 51 leagues: The first was that the "number of contests and length of season in like and comparable sports for both boys and girls" be equalized; and the second was that season overlaps be alleviated where feasible.

The result is that the length of season and the maximum number of contests have been reduced for most boys' sports and increased for most girls sports.

Soccer and boys' basketball are particularly affected because their seasons include the Christmas vacation period.

For both those sports, the final date for league and non-league contests will move forward about a week — this year the regular season ends on Feb. 19; next year it must end by Feb. 11.

With the present schedule, there are seven weeks between the first of the year and the end of the regular basketball and soccer seasons — just enough time for an eight-team league to play two rounds of games at two games per week.

Since that portion of the season will be shortened one week, leagues will have to decide either to play two league games before Christmas or to play three league games during each of two of the six weeks between Jan. 1 and the end of the regular season.

If many leagues opted to play league contests before Christmas, it could be a blow to pre-holiday tournaments like the San Dimas Tournament of Champions. But it looks like that won't happen.

Won't hurt T of C

"Apparently it hasn't hurt us," said San Dimas athletic director Bob Baiz, director of the T of C. "We've checked with all the schools that will be in next year's seeded (small schools) division, and none of them expect to be affected.

"I think most leagues are doing basically what the Hacienda League is doing: our league secretary (Jim Graham) is drawing up a proposal that we play three league games the first week of January and three again the third week of January." The HL athletic directors will consider that plan at a meeting today and the league's principals will vote on it later.

It's a good bet that few loops will decide to play league contests in December. Coaches want more time than that to prepare their teams for the contests that count; also, basketball or soccer players who also play football would probably not be quite ready for the league opener.

For boys' basketball, the maximum number of contests for next year will be reduced from the present 22 to 20. What that will probably mean is a reduction in the number of non-tournament, non-league games.

After 14 league games are subtracted (for an eight-team league), only six games remain to be scheduled. For example, most teams now play in three tournaments and two solitary non-league games in December. But because of the two-game reduction in the maximum, schools will have to chose between three tournaments (two games are charged for each tournament) or two tournaments and two single games.

May opt for tourneys

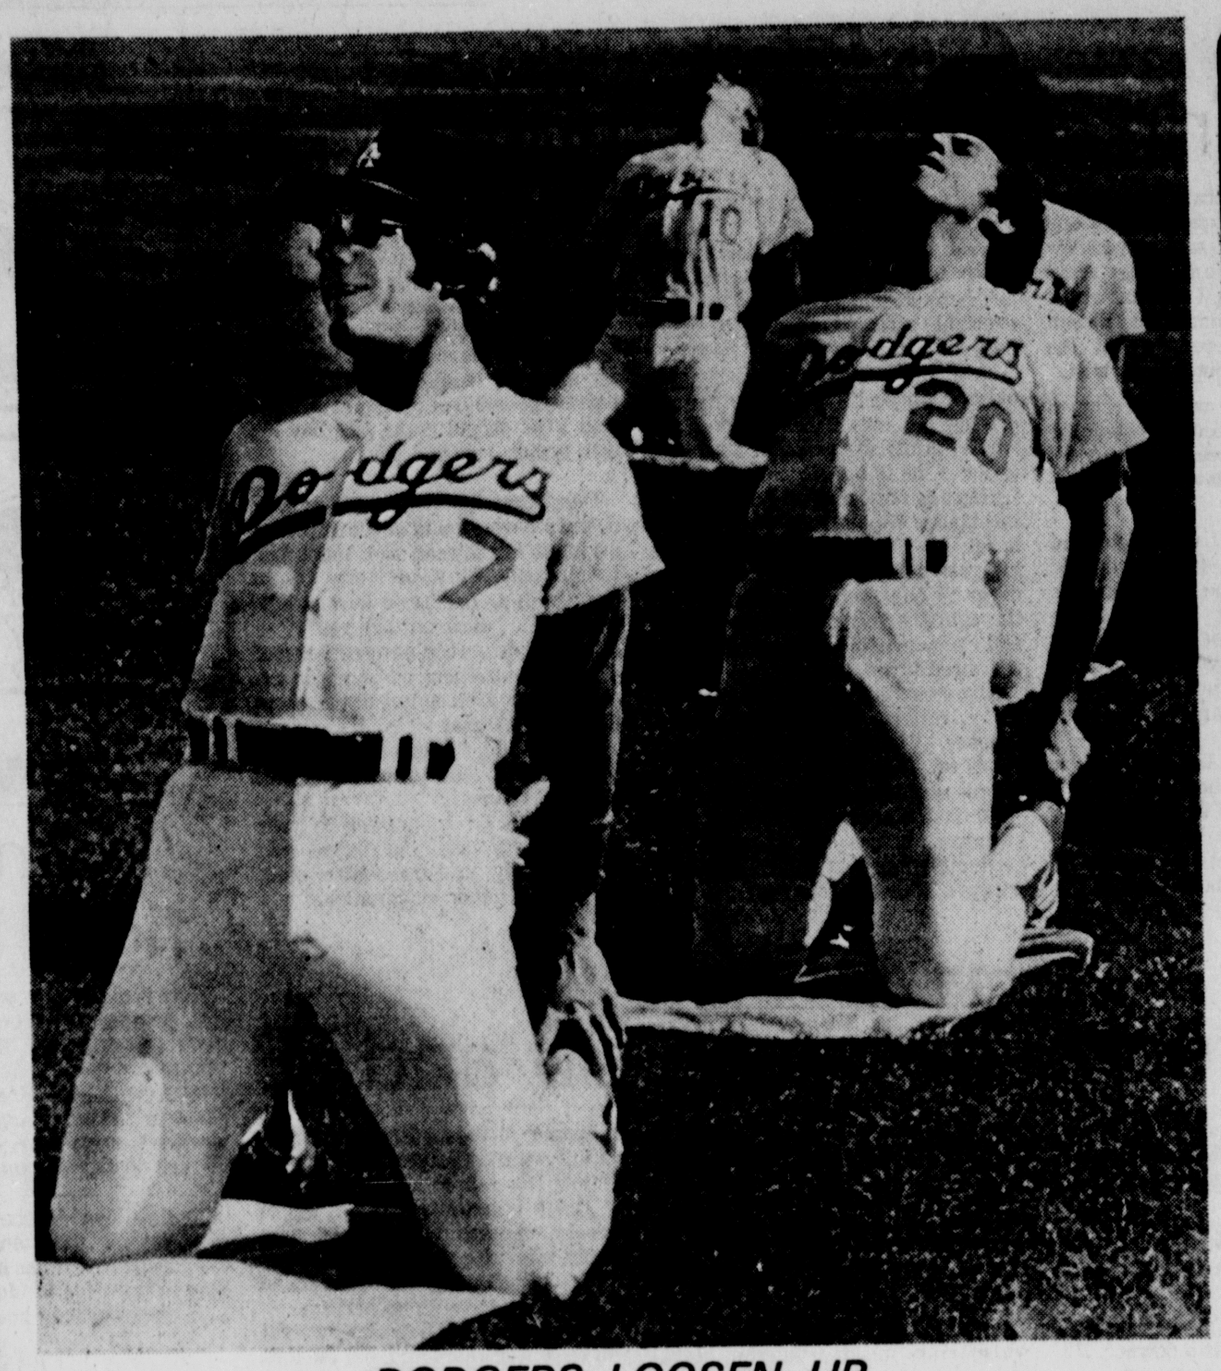

"Since if you win in a tournament you get to play more than two games," said Baiz, "most coaches will probably want to play in three tournaments; that way they will at least have the possibility of playing more games."

Soccer and boys' basketball will suffer the largest reductions in length of season — three weeks — of any sports. Practice will begin two weeks later for both.

Field hockey will benefit most from the new calendar in terms of enlarging its season. That sport will now run concurrently with soccer, with a 13-week, 20-contest schedule. Formerly hockey was allowed just nine weeks and 16 games.

One advantage to the new calender — especially for multi-sport athletes — is that seasons will not overlap as much. One exception will be girls' basketball, which will still be in progress when practice begins for girls' spring sports. For example, Karen Berry now coaches both basketball and softball at Chaffey High. Since next year's girls' basketball season will overlap the softball season by 26 days instead of the current 13, she will have to drop one, according to athletic director Clyde Francisco.

Boys' baseball, tennis and volleyball (as well as basketball) will lose two games each next year, but boys' gymnastics will add two.

DODGERS LOOSEN UP

Steve Yeager (7), Don Sutton (20) and Ron Cey (10) are among Dodgers loosening up for practice at Dodger Stadium. The club's annual public workout is slated Sunday starting at 11:30 a.m. The Dodgers then will play USC at 1 p.m. Admission and parking is free.

NFL, players speed up talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The draft, or the legal prohibition of one, rates high on the list. However, there are other issues still on the National Football League negotiating table.

The players' union contends there are at least seven issues on which the owners and the union are still far apart. Management declines to indulge in a numbers game, conceding that they are closer on some issues than on others.

"By Wednesday night, we should know what issues separate us," said Ed Garvey, union executive director. "Hopefully, there will be a lot fewer than now."

Representatives of the NFL Management Council, bargaining arm for the owners, and the NFL Players Association meet again today in a continuation of their stepped-up discussions to reach a collective bargaining agreement. There has been no league contract since Jan. 31, 1974.

The two sides have held four meetings since Super Bowl week in hopes of hammering out a contract that would be agreeable to both the owners and the players. The main reason, at the moment, is the college draft which would have been held last week under normal circumstances.

Pro football is ridden with anxiety among management, players, would-be players and agents, all awaiting the outcome of the negotiations.

Since the draft as it was held in the NFL for 40 years was struck down by a federal judge last year as an antitrust violation, there have been questions about whether one would be held this year. If both sides can reach an agreement on some sort of draft, then most probably one could be held legally under a so-called labor exemption.

Terry Bledsoe, management spokesman, said he believes there is pressure to reach an agreement because "of the question mark about the draft. Clubs have decisions that need to be made. The pressure is real, and it may not be unhealthy. The question of the draft could be a key to some of the other things."

Garvey has suggested that Feb. 15 be the deadline for reaching an agreement. "If a new contract is not agreed to within the next week or two, there is no reason to have meetings for quite a while. We'll just see what happens."

He said several players' agents have indicated they are ready to file suit to permit them to deal with any club for their clients' talents. There is also an indication that whatever form of the draft is agreed upon, someone will sue the NFL, anyway.

The union has proposed two possible solutions to the draft problem. One would be through salary arbitration, after a 45-60-day period for a college star who refused to sign with the team that selected him. The other would adopt pro basketball's approach, setting up a sliding minimum wage scale for a player signing for periods such as one, two or three years.

NBA playoff spots are open

NEW YORK (AP) — The season is past the halfway point and the All-Star Game is coming up Sunday in Milwaukee, so this is a good time to take a look at how the National Basketball Association playoff picture is shaping up.

Four teams are playing over .600 ball—Philadelphia and Denver, which were supposed to, and Portland and Los Angeles, which weren't. They're the only teams which seem assured of playoff berths at this stage of the campaign.

This spring, 12 teams will qualify for post-season play— the four division winners and the four other teams in each conference with the best records. Thus it will be possible for four teams from one division to qualify and only two from the other division in the same conference. That flexibility should keep the battles for playoff spots alive until the final week of the regular season, in April.

Here's a division-by-division look at the way things now stand:

Talent-laden Philadelphia has put it together in the past month to pull away from its Atlantic Division rivals, even though all-star guard Doug Collins has been injured. Lloyd Free has come on strong as a backcourt scorer, but the Sixers have at times missed the cohesiveness and leadership which Collins provided.

Julius Erving and George McGinnis are two devastating forwards, but in playing together each has had to make sacrifices. And in this case, the total comes to much less than the sum of the parts.

The recent injury to defense-minded center Harvey Catchings, out till April, also hurts. Caldwell Jones is erratic, and muscular Darryl Dawkins is still inexperienced. Forward Stave Mix could see more and more action in the middle.

Boston has Dave Cowens back, but the loss of guard Charlie Scott is a crusher. John Havlicek has to go 40 minutes a game in the backcourt, which is too much for any 36-year-old. Free agent Bobby Wilson, the ex-Chicago Bull, may help a little, but the Celtics will have to scramble to gain a playoff spot.

The New York Knicks are where Philadelphia was a couple of months ago—still trying to fit the talented pieces together. Even with Spencer Haywood out with a chronic leg injury, this team should make the playoffs on talent alone, but it will be a struggle.

Bob McAdoo is still feeling his way, trying to figure out just what he has to do to make the club win. Guard Earl Monroe is having a brilliant year, but the key men are Walt Frazier and Lonnie Shelton. Frazier is the proven backcourt leader who can pull the pieces together, while Shelton—if he can stay out of foul trouble—is the one big man who can throw his weight around defensively.

Buffalo and the New York Nets can do little but look to next season, using the remainder of this campaign to sort out the bodies on their rapidly changing rosters.

Washington has come on with a rush to lead a four-way scramble in the Central Division. Newly acquired guard Tom Henderson should be a valuable addition, but can Kevin Grevey and Leonard Gray adequately replace Truck Robinson at forward?

Cleveland has been unable to take anybody by surprise this season, as it did last year. Campy Russell and Austin Carr, reserves at the beginning of the season, are starters now.

Houston has kept its head over .500 and should stay there as youngsters Moses Malone and John Lucas gain experience. Since Malone is considered a center in Coach Tom Nissalke's long-range planning, the Rockets spent the days before the Feb. 1 trading deadline trying to find a first-rate power forward—but came up empty.

San Antonio, with George Gervin and Larry Kenon, can score with anybody, but defense is another matter. A healthy James Silas would greatly improve the Spurs' playoff chances.

New Orleans was an early-season surprise, but a rough road schedule this month could silence the Jazz. Atlanta has two fine young forwards in Robinson and John Drew, but the other positions are wide open. Losing guard Geoff Petrie for the year hurt badly.

In the Midwest, Denver has picked up where it left off in the American Basketball Association, dominating its division with an exciting, running team. If the Nuggets have a weakness it's at guard, where nobody has really replaced Ralph Simpson, dealt to Detroit in the trade which brought Paul Silas from Boston. David Thompson played guard for a while but is now back at forward, while recent arrival Jim Price may or may not be the answer.

Detroit has become the Oakland A's of the NBA, a brash, brawling bunch that is loaded with talent but has trouble maintaining peace and harmony. Center Bob Lanier is having a marvelous season, but four first-class guards are at least one too many to keep everyone happy and the unsettled Marvin Barnes situation has not helped. But like the Knicks, on talent alone this should be a playoff team.

Kansas City, with three newcomers in its starting lineup, is a .500 ballclub which will move up if and when rookie Richard Washington asserts himself as a top power forward.

Indiana has been a major surprise to NBA diehards, who may have heard of Billy Knight but who are just beginning to discover Don Buse and Dan Roundfield. But the playoffs appear out of reach, unless ex-Net John Williamson provides a big boost.

Four Pacific Division teams are over .500—and that does not include last year's championship finalist, Phoenix—so it figures to be quite a scramble for Western Conference playoff berths.

Portland, totally rebuilt in the off-season, should stay on top as long as center Bill Walton remains healthy. ABA imports Maurice Lucas and Dave Twardzik have opened quite a few eyes with their fine play.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is having a super season for Los Angeles, and Coach Jerry West, ably assisted by Stan Albeck and Jack McCloskey, has gotten the most out of the supporting cast. If this team finishes anywhere near its present .647 winning percentage, West has to be considered for Coach of the Year honors.

Golden State has fallen back into the pack because its defense has not been up to the level of the past couple of years, but with Rick Barry and Jamaal Wilkes the Warriors are always dangerous.

Seattle will need a big second half from Tall Tom Burleson, plus some steady production from its forwards, if it is to hold off Phoenix and beat out the No. 3 Midwest Divison club for a playoff spot. Phoenix, meanwhile, is strengthened by the emergence of rookie guard Ron Lee, but needs to keep its front court trio of Alvan Adams, Gar Heard and Curtis Perry healthy to climb into the playoffs.

So in brief, this is the way the playoff picture looks:

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Solid—Philadelphia.

Strong—Washington and Cleveland.

Scrambling—Houston, San Antonio, Boston, New York Knicks and New Orleans, for three spots.

WESTERN CONFERENCE

Solid—Denver, Portland and Los Angeles.

Strong—Detroit and Golden State.

Scrambling—Seattle, Kansas City, Phoenix and Indiana, for one spot.

Trojan gets Pac-8 honor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of Southern California Trojans, winners at last in Pacific-8 basketball, have the conference's Player of the Week in Paul Henderson.

The junior forward who scored 19 points in Saturday night's 83-70 victory over Washington was honored Monday by the Pac-8.

The Trojans had lost 21 consecutive conference games including six this season before spilling the Huskies, who went into the weekend tied for first place. Henderson scored 17 points in a two-point loss to Washington State Thursday night, and in the week's two games shot 10 for 14 from the field and 16 for 17 from the free throw line.

Also nominated for the weekly award were Oregon's Greg Ballard, Washington State's Harold Rhodes, Oregon State's George Tucker and Washington's James Edwards.

Bartow, Bruins feeling confident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA Coach Gene Bartow has his Bruins on top of the Pacific-8 Conference basketball race and said Monday he feels a touch of confidence.

After a 75-65 victory over Washingtron and a 72-59 triumph over Washington State, the No. 2-rated Bruins head north this week to face the same Pac-8 opponents.

UCLA goes against Washington State at Pullman on Thursday night then goes to Washington Saturday night.

"We are in a good position," Bartow said.

"We feel right now to go on the road, because from the physical standpoint we're sound."

The Bruins have seven games remaining on their schedule and Barstow said, "We know if we win all our games, we're OK. We have the opportunity to control our destiny."

After the two games in Washington, the Bruins return north the following week to visit Oregon State and Oregon, then return home to host Stanford and California before closing out the Pac-8 year at the Sports Arena against Southern California.

Jenner—'U.S. is slipping'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bruce Jenner didn't bite the hand that rewarded him, but he did suggest the Amateur Athletic Union could make improvements and improvements will be necessary to keep the United States competitive in the 1980 Olympics in Russia.

The 27-year-old who won a gold medal last year with a world record performance in the grueling decathlon at Montreal, became the 47th winner of the AAU's James E. Sullivan Trophy emblematic of the nation's outstanding amateur athlete of 1976.

Jenner, who scored 8,618 points in the 10-event track and field test, previously had been named the Athlete-of-the-Year by The Associated Press.

In the AAU voting, the 195-pound trackman who stands 6-foot 2, outdistanced swimmer John Naber and figure skater Dorothy Hamill who also were gold medal winning Olympians.

"That gold medal meant more to me than all the money in the world," declared Jenner, who now is a commentator for the American Broadcasting Company. "This award is the perfect way to end a career."

After thus acknowledging the Sullivan Trophy, Jenner said he believes the AAU and other organizations must make changes to keep America's athletes in top spots.

"I really think the AAU and the others must get their stuff organized better," Jenner said. "The USA is slipping farther and farther behind the other nations in support of athletes. East Germany aids its athletes and if it goes into a track meet against the United States and wins, there is tremendous national pride.

"We're able to win, but every year we slip and things will be particularly tough at the Olympics in Moscow.

"Our amateur athletes should have more support than they now receive. If there are not some drastic things done in the next few years, there are going to be problems.

"Some potential Olympic gold medal winners will be left home because they do not have the funds to quit jobs and do the training necessary.

"I don't want to see amateur athletes go professional, but why not get subsidization for money that is lost. I'm in support of the President's Commission proposals. The amateur program needs revision...give amateur athletics more support.

"What we have in the United States is tremendous junior high school, high school and college athletic programs. This is where the training takes place. After college, the AAU, Olympic Committee and others come into effect to keep the athletes active, but not to the extent that I think they should. Priorities in America are not with amateur sports programs...priorities go more to the professionals."

All 10 finalists in the Sullivan competition were Olympians. Jenner scored 4,017 points to win, Naber of Menlo Park, Calif., finished second with 2,314 and Miss Hamil, Riverside, Conn., totaled 1,718.

Other finalists, in alphabetical order were diver Jenni Chandler, boxer Howard Davis, race walker Ron Laird, basketball player Scott May, long jumper Kathy McMillan, wrestler John Peterson and long jumper Arnie Robinson.

Voting was by the AAU board of governors, sports media and past winners of the award. Five points were awarded for first place, three for second and one for third.

Jenner, who recently moved from San Jose to Malibu, is the 16th Californian to win the award which dates back to 1930 when golf star Bobby Jones won it. A native of Mt. Kisco, N.Y., Jenner attended college at Graceland in Lamoni, Iowa.

Damien, Chino triumph

Easy win for 'Pack

Claremont High had seven men score goals as the Wolfpack took over sole possession of third place in the San Antonio League soccer standings Monday afternoon in white-washing Montclair, 7-0.

Damien High, who is atop the SAL standings at 9-1-1, downed visiting Ganesha High, 2-1. Chino, which is chasing Damien for first place, kept it title hopes alive by blanking Pomona, 3-0. And Upland recorded its first SAL victory over Garey, 3-1.

With Garey's defeat, Claremont takes over third place in the SAL standings. Claremont and Garey had began the afternoon tied at 5-2-3.

The Wolfpack dominated the contest as they outshot Montclair, 24-6. Jerry VanZee set up three of the seven Claremont goals as he turned in a super performance after being moved up to the forward spot. Jim Bently and Bob Gutman were also instrumental in the Wolfpack victory.

Claremont is now 6-2-3 and the Wolfpack remains four points behind front runnning Damien High. Overall, Claremont is 11-4-1.

Damien scored both of its goals in first half action to record its ninth SAL victory. Pat Fahey and Rick Garcia accounted for both Spartan tallies. The Spartans played the entire second half with subs. Damien is now 15-3-1 on the year.

Chino High did not play its best game in defeating the Red Devils. The Cowboys turned in a sluggish effort in Monday's contest. But the players could have been looking ahead to Wednesday's clash with Claremont. Chino could put a virtual lock on second place in the SAL standings. Chino is 7-1-2 and the Cowboys trail Damien by two points.

Webb High in a home non-league contest defeated Bosco Tech, 2-0.

Auerbach to Mets for minor pitchers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have acquired pitchers Hank Webb and Rick Sander from the New York Mets in a trade for infielder Rick Auerbach.

"Our scouts are high on Webb and Sander," said Al Campanis, Dodgers vice president, in announcing the trade Monday.

"Webb has an excellent fast ball and good control," Campanis said. "Sander is a youngster with a bright future ahead."

Webb, 26, has been assigned to Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League.

Last year, the righthander pitched in eight games for the Mets and was 0-1 with a 4.50 ERA. He also pitched at Tidewater in the International League, where he had a 2-9 record in 19 games with a 6.11 ERA.

Webb has pitched portions of the last five seasons for the Mets. He had his finest year in 1975, when he was 7-6.

The 20-year-old Sander has been assigned to San Antonio of the Texas League. Last year, he was 11-8 at Lynchburg of the Carolina League.

Scramble develops in Derby

The three leaders maintained their positions in this week's Prep Scoring Derby but there's quite a scramble after that.

Calvary Baptist's Robert Turner, who missed one game last week due to illness but scored 45 points in the other, improved his No. 1 average to 35.4 points per game.

Damien's Bill Duffy (22.4) and Lutheran's Gregg Guenther (19.7) stayed in the No. 2 and No. 3 spots.

Six valley players are averaging between 17 and 18 points as of this week. Ganesha's James Verdon leads the group with an average of 17.83 points per outing. Next in order are Walnut's Jeff Davis and Calvary Baptist's Chris Pruitt, tied for the No. 5 spot, Garey's James Lofton, San Dimas' Mark Klein and Ontario Christian's Hank Bouwman.

Chino's Roger Hairston rounds out the top 10 with his 16.4 average.

Kentucky gets help from Florida

By The Associated Press

Don't be surprised if there is a mass exodus of tourists from Kentucky to Florida one of these days in appreciation of what the basketball teams of Florida and Florida State did for the Kentucky Wildcats Monday night.

While third-ranked Kentucky was walloping Florida State 97-57 in a non-conference game, the University of Florida was dealing No. 11 Tennessee its first Southeastern Conference defeat 80-76, dropping the Vols into a virtual first-place deadlock with Kentucky.

Seventh-ranked Alabama remained close to the SEC leaders with a 72-68 triumph over Mississippi, while fifth-ranked Michigan moved into the Big Ten Conference lead, downing No. 8 Minnesota 86-80.

Three other members of The Associated Press Top 20 were in action. Arkansas, rated 13th, rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit and edged Tulane 76-73, No. 17 Syracuse routed Bentley 104-86 and No. 20 VMI celebrated its first-ever appearance in the rankings by outlasting Marshall 97-90.

While Kentucky Coach Joe Hall was ecstatic over the way his Wildcats manhandled Florida State, the sellout crowd at Louisville was really awaiting the score from Florida's tiny gym in Gainesville. And when it came through, a huge roar went up.

But the decibel count probably was not as high as that of the 5,000 fans who packed Florida's cramped court.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW ARE WAX CRAYONS MADE?"

KENNETH FRANK
LINDEN, NJ

A. WAX CRAYONS ARE MADE BY MIXING AND MOLDING MELTED WAX WITH COLORING PIGMENTS.

The wax crayons used to color pictures on paper were mixed in big cooking pots. A wax crayon is a stick of colored wax.

To make wax crayons, the crayonmaker begins by pouring melted wax into big mixing kettles. Then he adds colored powders called pigments to the wax.

Mixing blades mix the hot wax and colors together. After mixing the colors, the crayonmaker pours the colored wax onto nearby molding trays.

The hot, colored wax flows into crayon-shaped holes in the trays. It cools and hardens into crayons.

When the crayons are hard, the crayonmaker pushes a handle on the tray to press the crayons from their holes.

Next, the bright sticks of color will go to a machine that wraps each crayon in a paper wrapper the color of the crayon. Finally, the labeled crayons go to packaging machines that gather up crayons of different colors and slide them into boxes.
